Studying abroad in India is my wish. If I could study Buddhism in India, I would love to study in Nalanda University. Because of some reasons as follows: The first is the school's development history. The second is faculty members. Especially, that is Nalanda University's study program. Especially, I was really impressed to know that Nalanda University is envisaged as an icon of this new Asian renaissance: a creative space that will be for future generations a center of Inter civilizational dialogue. All elements have prompted me to seek scholarship opportunities for the Master’s Buddhist program. I hope I will have a good opportunity to attend this school so that I can experience the life of an international student as well as gain a lot of useful knowledge and practice experience.
